

Jon Verleni

Jon is a 25 year old finance consultant at Goldman Sachs. As a consultant at Goldman Sachs, he is constantly busy with work. Portfolio readings, boardroom meetings and deadlines prevent him from having any life outside of work. Although he still finds the time here and there to visit and chat with family and friends, most of his time is spent on his computer/smartphone doing work.

His typical day involves waking up at 5 am, walking down to his favourite bistro, a little arabica place that sits a couple floors under his apartment. He has breakfast till 6 am, and then leaves for work at 7. Jon works a lot with computers so he is very tech savvy. Jon works a high stress job, he enjoys it of course, but he does not deny that it takes a toll on him. After work he is usually mentally and physically drained. However he spends most of his time after work looking through financial documents on different companies or preparing presentations on his computer for the next day. On the off days where he's not doing work, he goes out with friends and gets in touch with family.

Jon works very hard everyday, he loves what he does and understands the value of commitment towards a vocation. Jon's parents were immigrants, and he still remembers how hard it was for them to make a living. He remembers how they sometimes had to live on the streets or with family friends when they first arrived in Canada. Coming from this background, Jon tries his best to donate to charity, but with his work schedule he often overlooks it.

Margaret O'Neal

Margaret is a right wing, elderly woman in her late 70's. She used to work as a baker with her husband, before he passed away from lung cancer. She still goes to visit his grave once a week. During her weekly visits, she enjoys walking around the neighbourhood. As she walks around she greets everyone she meets and is well known in her community. She sometimes buys ice cream for the local children around the street. The most experience Margaret has with computers is using the fancy smartphone her niece got for her 2 years ago. Margaret can be very dogmatic about her opinions sometimes.

Her typical day involves waking up at 5 am, slipping into her cozy pajama slippers and shuffling down to her kitchen. She then proceeds to make some tea with her homemade kettle. After she's had morning tea she bakes a pie for the neighbourhood kids who occasionally come by to visit. She can be found most afternoons out in her patio, sitting in her favourite rocking chair.

Margaret enjoys handing out food to the neighbourhood kids that come to visit her house. Apart from the occasional visits from neighbourhood children, Margaret does not get many other visitors in her old age. One time she got to visit a homeless shelter and she had an amazing time giving out food to them. Margaret wishes she could have more moments like that but her old age prevents her from leaving the house.

His typical day involves waking up at 9:15 am for his 9:00 am lecture, making a quick breakfast and eating it on his way to class.
